

GOVERNOR SEEKS TO BRING ORDER FROM CHAOS IN DETROIT

Endeavors to Set Wheels in Motion After Disorder From Strikes

PLAN "ROUND-TABLE"

"Peace" Committee of 20 to Represent Industry, Unions And the Public

By James L. Kilgallen
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

DETROIT, Mar. 15.—(INS)—Governor Frank Murphy set the wheels in motion today to bring order out of chaos developing in Detroit as a result of the wave of "sit-down" strikes.

While the Governor was proceeding with his plans, which include the holding of a round-table conference on Wednesday of his "peace" committee of twenty men and women representing industry, labor unions and the public, the strikes in the Chrysler and Hudson automobile plants seemed as far from settlement as ever.

The strikers continued to hold complete possession of Chrysler's eight plants and the company was engaged in court action designed to evict them. Today circuit court judge Allan Campbell was to announce his decision on the petition of the corporation for an injunction requiring the strikers to evacuate the factories.

Governor Murphy planned to confer today in his office at Lansing with Attorney General Raymond Starr, Colonel Samuel Pepper, Judge Advocate of the Michigan National Guard and the prosecutors of Wayne, Genesee, Oakland and Ingham counties to map out plans for the calling together of representatives of all law enforcement bodies in the state.

The purpose of this conference will be to discuss the legal situation brought about by the epidemic of strikes and the legal rights of all parties concerned.

Governor Murphy intends to present to the committee of twenty, meeting Wednesday at the Hotel Statler in Detroit, a plan to establish arbitration boards in the four counties named, with the boards empowered to handle strikes and other labor troubles.

He hopes to work out some plan whereby "sit-down" strikes which in the past three months have caused loss of employment to more than 250,000 persons in this state may be averted. It is believed the Governor will also endeavor to have the legislature enact laws that will give the arbitration boards an official status.

Governor Murphy was largely instrumental in bringing about of a settlement over the week-end of the strike in the Crowley-Milner department store, the second largest in the city. The store was to re-open today, with evacuation by the strikers a part of the agreement.

Conferences at which the Crowley-Milner strike was settled were held in the Governor's suite in the Book-Cadillac Hotel here. Commenting on the settlement, James B. Jones, president of the company said:

"The Governor has done an excellent job and has been fair to both sides."

Great Love Story Has Prominence, "Lloyds" Film

Against the turbulent canvas of adventure and intrigue which forms the pulse-stirring background of "Lloyds of London," the picture that has startled two continents and which shows Monday and Tuesday at the Grand Theatre, there stands out one of the great love stories of all time, when fierce courage and vengeful fury fought to the death for a love that flamed while the fate of an empire hung in the balance.

Packed with the thrill of forbidden kisses that changed the destiny of a whole empire, as the fateful lovers forgot everything but that they were man and woman in each other's arms, the film tells the story of human passions that were inextricably woven with the course of history.

When Freddie Bartholomew, as young Jonathan Blake, and Douglas Scott, as the youthful Horatio Nelson, discover a plot to scuttle a ship and collect the insurance from Lloyds, the boyhood friends determine to warn "Mr. Lloyd" of the plot. At the last moment, Horatio's uncle takes him off to sea, and Freddie sets out alone on the hundred-mile walk to London.

The young lad's courage so impresses Sir Guy Standing, head of the syndicate, that he rewards the boy by taking him into the business, where every year Jonathan grows in stature and reputation.

In the midst of world turmoil and personal torment, Jonathan, later famous in Lloyds, struggles to maintain equilibrium and fight his way through to happiness for himself, honor and glory for his firm, and supremacy for England.

LUCK CROSSES ATLANTIC AS SWEEPSTAKES OPEN

Second Ticket in Irish Sweepstakes Goes to Resident of Brooklyn, N. Y.

TO DRAW 60 HORSES

By Charles A. Smith
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

DUBLIN, Ireland, Mar. 15.—(INS)—With $8,311,000 ready to be distributed by St. Patrick's Eve, luck rolled steadily across the Atlantic as the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes draw got under way today.

The second ticket of millions in the huge steel drum in the round room of the Lord Mayor's mansion house decorated to represent a "dream castle," went to a Brooklyn, N. Y., address, and indications came early that Americans would get at least $4,000,000.

This auspicious beginning was borne out in a record high mark of 36 tickets for the United States out of the first 64.

Nine Americans drew Keen Blade, ten drew Stonard, nine Thieffry, and eight True Blue. All are non-runners or outsiders.

Total receipts for the 20th Irish Sweep, were $13,932,160.

Draw Director John O'Sheehan stated that the prize fund would be divided into 16 units of $500,000 each, with ten residual prizes of $31,116 each.

The residuals this time will be a joy to receive—for the last time they were only $5,432—and they are outright cash gifts, having no bearing on the Grand National sweepstake.

Receipts for the previous sweep were $13,522,370, and the prize fund was $8,054,390.

Announcing that the names of 60 horses would be drawn, O'Sheehan stated that every ticket holder drawing a horse would receive a minimum of $7,070—even if the horse doesn't place, finish, or even start. Last time ticket holders on non-placers got only $2,966.

After the Grand National is run at Aintree, England, Friday, each $500,000 prize fund will be broken down as follows:

Drawers of winning horse, $150,000 each; second horse, $75,000 each; third, $50,000 each; drawers of remaining non-placing horses, total of $175,000; and 100 cash consolation prizes of $500 each, totaling $50,000.

All the horse prizes are expected to be drawn today, and the cash consolation and residual prizes tomorrow.

In a setting of pageantry, pretty Irish hospital nurses started drawing out of the counterfoils. The first horse was Thieffry, a non-runner.

"Once In A Lifetime" was the name of the Brooklyn drawer of the second counterfoil.

Shot During Dispute Over Gambling Debts

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 15.—Neuman Roberts, 19, of Ardmore, was in a serious condition today with three bullet wounds in his abdomen as the aftermath of a dispute with a friend over a $7 gambling debt.

John Tracey, 19, son of a former Philadelphia police magistrate, fired the bullets, police said, from a revolver he received as a birthday present last week from his wife, Eleanor. Tracey was held without bail.

Rev. Robert Fraser To Mark "Air" Anniversary

The many Bucks county friends of the Rev. Robert Fraser, blind, singing evangelist, will be pleased to know that he will celebrate his 12th anniversary on the air, tomorrow night, at the Arch Street Methodist Church, Philadelphia.

The Rev. Fraser, heard over WIP radio station every Tuesday night at nine p. m., is also the founder and conductor of the Fraser Home for Girls, in Philadelphia.

Although blind since birth, the Rev. Fraser's life work is helping others. He has supplied many artificial limbs and wheel-chairs for those unable to secure them in any other way.

Having conducted many evangelistic meetings in Bucks county churches, the Rev. Fraser is well known here, and has made many friends in the county.

INTEREST INCREASING IN THE BABY ELECTION

CHARMING NOMINEE

Today means another tabulation for the little candidates. Much interest was shown last week, and parents were busy until 10 o'clock Saturday night, collecting all available votes for their little ones.

Interest Increasing Daily

Since the publication of pictures showing some of the nominees, the interest created has exceeded all possible expectations and hopes. Photographs of the beautiful little prize-winners will be printed as space in the paper permits. Many requests for a larger number of baby pictures are received each day as all seem anxious to feast their optics upon the beautiful little ones. It is not too late to enter babies; several new names are in the lineup today and it is hoped that many more babies will enter for the next list as the more babies there are voting with each other for the honors the more interesting the feature will become and a less number of votes will be required to win if there is a wider distribution of votes. Come on in—the more the merrier; let's show the whole countryside just how beautiful Bristol's and communities' babies really are and just how proud we are of each of them. Now is the time to make the entry and begin rounding up votes for your favorite baby.

Modern Methods Employed

Mothers and friends of some of the babies have adopted modern business methods and keep their telephones busy daily requesting their friends, relatives and acquaintances to trade at the stores that issue baby vote coupons upon purchases and cast the votes for their babies. Some are known to be using the mails to reach friends throughout the community's trading territory requesting support for their favorites. Everyone, everywhere, is aware of the fact that something unusual is taking place in the community—for the community's beautiful babies have the spotlight now.

Representative families of the entire community and environs have infants entered in the election helping themselves to personal honors and community wide fame, while simultaneously creating one of the biggest business booms Bristol and community has known in many a day. Business is on the up grade and prospects were never brighter for a return to the halcyon days of old.

MARY ANN GOSLINE
Bristol

Occasionally it looks like the light from heaven was allowed to shine upon the face of a child. In this picture there is that indefinable something that makes you feel that angels really live about us. The wealth and richness of those beautiful blue eyes beaming from such a pretty face crowned with an abundance of curly chestnut hair. You'll have to get acquainted with her and then decide for yourself, but don't make the decision until you've had the opportunity to see that this picture is not unreal—that it really portrays a little girl of rare promise. Mary Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gosline, of 547 Linden street, Bristol, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Anna Gosline and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Caputa, of Bristol. Her great-grandmothers are Mrs. Katherine Court and Mrs. Mary Gosline, of Bristol.

has known in many a day. Business is on the up grade and prospects were never brighter for a return to the halcyon days of old.

Seven Killed in Auto Crashes, Phila. Area

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 15.—(INS)—Seven persons were killed and more than a score of others were injured in automobile accidents in the Philadelphia metropolitan district Sunday during the heaviest snow fall of the season.

Snow-covered windshields and skidding on ice-coated streets and highways were blamed for most of the fatalities, the worst death toll of the winter. The snowstorm which howled down for 18 hours, turned to rain early today. With bus schedules disrupted and all airplanes grounded, more snow was forecast for later today.

Those killed were:

William McCummings, 35, of Sylmar, Md., and Howard Paxson, 39, of New London, Pa., killed at Oxford; Julia Hutt, 16, and her mother, Mrs. Anna Hutt, 45, killed while walking across a street near their home here; C. O. Campbell, 52, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Nellie Poole, 44, of Mortonville, and Elmer B. Rhoades, 42, of Gloucester, N. J.

FINE PRIZES TONIGHT

Cases of soft drinks, chickens, baskets of potatoes, and many other fine prizes are promised by Mrs. Marvel Durham for those securing high scores at the card party of American Legion Auxiliary in the Bracken Post home tonight. Playing will start at 8.30, and public support is asked.

ROSENBERGER FUNERAL

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 15.—(INS)—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Harrington B. Rosenberger, prominent Bucks county business man, who died suddenly Sunday at his home here. He was 67 and was president of the H. B. Rosenberger Company, dealers in coal, lumber and feed.

EASTER FASHION PARADE WILL HAVE RAINBOW HUE

MIAMI, Fla., Mar. 15.—(INS)—Stylists have invaded the art galleries, raided the flower gardens and looted the rainbow for color this spring.

And the sum total of their forays is a color trove that pales the most vivid memories of the oldest designer.

Nasturtium, Windsor carnation, South American rose, cherry, victory blue, carnation, fumed oak, Gauguin pink, the hyacinth shades and magnolia green are among the new high style colors that will splash the Easter parade with gaiety.

In tune with the new feminized influence which is being stressed by every designer of importance this spring, the new colors are so important as to be all but indispensable to the success of any ensemble.

Equally as important is the role they can be made to play in providing variety and verve for one ensemble. The possibility of using the new colors to change the character of an ensemble was interestingly portrayed during a fashion show held in the palm gardens of the Roney Cabana Sun Club when a number of leading American designers were represented.

Colorful Ensemble Chosen

The ensemble chosen to illustrate the infinite variety which color can be made to lend was of pussywillow grey crepe with short box coat and pencil silhouette skirt. For street wear the ensemble was shown with carnation accessories. Pointed up with butterfly yellow accessories it became formal enough for spectator sports or tea dance wear. In a third guise the dress was shown without the coat and highlighted with a small boutonniere of cornflowers and matching accessories.

Orders Sit-Down Strikers Out

DETROIT, Mich., Mar. 15.—Circuit Court Judge Allan Campbell today issued a temporary injunction ordering all of the sit-down strikers to leave the plant of the Chrysler Corporation by nine o'clock Wednesday morning.

The order was granted at the request of the Chrysler Corporation. Arguments on the petition were heard by Judge Campbell on Saturday and he announced his decision this morning.

Judge Campbell, in giving his ruling, said: "The issue of the case at bar is not between this plaintiff and the defendant. Respect for the Court and law and order has been menaced. The court has a right to expect the citizens of this community to give their entire co-operation and support to the position here taken. The writ may be issued as prayed."

The injunction was turned over to Sheriff Thomas S. Wilcox for service on the strikers. The plants in the Detroit area are being occupied by strikers.

If the strikers refuse to leave the plant after the injunction is served, it will be necessary for the Chrysler Corporation to go to Court again and ask for a body attachment on all the strikers. If this is granted, it will then be the duty of Sheriff Wilcox to arrest all of the strikers and bring them into court to face charges of contempt of court. Action to eject the strikers cannot be taken by the Sheriff until the body attachment is granted.

The Judge cited how officers and agents of the Chrysler Company have been kept from the plant by the "sit-downers." He recalled Chrysler claims that "a large number of employees" are ready and anxious to work if permitted to do so.

He also cited the charges United Automobile Workers made against the Chrysler Company in which the union claimed the corporation had violated the National Labor Relations Act by employing special organizing unions and discharging men for union activities.

REPORT 56 ALARMS OF FIRE FOR THREE MONTHS

Loss Estimated at $52,000, Firemen of Bucks County Ass'n Are Informed

MEETING IN YARDLEY

YARDLEY, Mar. 15.—Twenty-five companies of volunteer firemen were represented at the quarterly meeting of the Bucks County Firemen's Association held Saturday evening in the I. O. O. F. Hall. The address of welcome was made by Vincent Casey, president of the Yardley Company.

The County Fire Marshal, William L. Stackhouse of Hulmeville reported 56 alarms answered during the past three months with a $52,000 loss covered by $25,000 insurance. Property endangered was valued at $108,000. These fires included four barns and two houses, and for the most part were in Lower Bucks County.

Of five in the vicinity of Bristol, three had been of incendiary origin in the last few weeks. Mr. Stackhouse further stated that the organization had been instrumental in securing convictions for arson against the owner and hired man for burning a barn at Jamieson, September 26th and also against the owner of a barn in Haycock Township, near Richlandtown, on December 20th.

The presiding officer, James E. Groome, complimented the Doylestown and Hartsville fire companies on their good work in obtaining the evidence for these convictions. Mr. Groome compared the three month loss of $52,000 with the total for the year 1936, which was $56,000, exclusive of the $82,000 loss by fire from lightning.

Discussions were heard on the methods used by Newtown firemen at the State fire near Dollington, and of other chicken houses near Pipersville. These discussions were led by the chiefs of the respective companies. The treasurer, Lewis C. Leedom, of Yardley, gave a balance of $1,129.58 on hand.

The financial secretary, W. C. Stauffer, of Sellersville, reported about 600 paid memberships at present. Raymond Strunk of Quakertown, spoke of EDGELY, Mar. 15.—Thomas Fagan, 58, died yesterday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Havard Himelright, Edgely avenue, after a three months' illness. Mass and interment will be at St. Anthony's Church, Ambler, on Wednesday morning. Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Himelright.

FOUR BRISTOLIANS HURT IN WEEK-END MOTOR ACCIDENTS

The Misses Beulah and Bertha Thornton Injured As Car Overturns

CRAVEN CHILD IS HIT

Three Cars Involved in Crash At the Fallsington Tunnel

Numerous accidents during the week-end kept officers of the State Highway Patrol barracks at Oxford Valley busy.

Four Bristol residents were among those listed as injured, this group being involved in three of the accidents.

Two sisters, the Misses Beulah and Bertha Thornton, 573 Bath street, were injured Sunday afternoon when the car operated by the former skidded and turned over on Bristol Pike at Bridgewater. The driver sustained multiple abrasions of the face, and injury to her nose. Miss Bertha Thornton was treated for laceration of the forehead, which required seven stitches. The two were taken to Harriman Hospital for treatment. Patrolman Jones and Corporal Evans investigated the case.

The Misses Thornton remain in the hospital for treatment. The car was considerably damaged.

The third Bristolian hurt was Michael Kondyra, aged 20, of 254 Hayes street. Kondyra has a laceration of the nose and forehead, and his cousin, Miss Marian Kondyra, 19, of 903 Tinton avenue, New York City, suffered lacerations of the face. Both were treated in Harriman Hospital, with Miss Kondyra being held for observation. The accident to the car operated by Kondyra occurred at Tullytown. It is stated the wheels of the machine became caught in the trolley tracks. In an effort to right the sedan, it was hurled head-on into a tree at the side of the street. Patrolman Leftwich was the officer investigating. The accident occurred yesterday afternoon at 4.25 o'clock.

The fourth Bristolian injured was Miss Anita Craven, aged nine years, 112 Mulberry street. The child was struck while crossing Radcliffe street Saturday evening, the automobile being operated by Claude Grady, 7 West Union street, Burlington, N. J. Grady took the little girl to Harriman Hospital, where she was found to be suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg. She was later removed to Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia.

Three cars were involved in a crash at Fallsington tunnel, yesterday at four o'clock. A coupe driven by Miss Edith Schneidmager, of 302 E. State street, Trenton, N. J., was in need of gas. Samuel DeSalvo, of 126 Burton street, Trenton, N. J., attempted to push her car to a garage, according to Highway Patrolman Aracome, who investigated. It is stated that a sedan operated by Eugene Peterson, 2233 Ocean avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., struck the DeSalvo car from the rear.

Miss Theresa Cardone, 127 Burton street, riding with DeSalvo, was treated for shock and bruises of the abdomen, at the office of a Fallsington physician.

At 12 o'clock last night, a coach operated by Lawrence J. Casey, 112 Wesley avenue, Collingswood, N. J., and a cabriolet driven by William Cracker, were involved in an accident at the intersection of the Lincoln highway and Hulmeville Road. It is stated by Patrolman Jones, the investigating officer, that the cars crashed, with the Casey machine then going over an embankment. Casey was treated by a Langhorne physician for severe lacerations of the forehead. No arrests were made.

Guest From Holmesburg Is Party Honor Guest

Miss Helen Clotti, Holmesburg, has been spending the last two weeks at the home of her sister, Mrs. Anthony Capella, 452 Logan street, and was tendered a surprise party by a number of friends last evening.

Miss Clotti received many gifts, including money. A buffet supper was served to about 30 guests. The time was spent in dancing, playing games and singing.

Those present: Mr. and Mrs. F. Clotti, Frank, Francis and Mario Clotti, Holmesburg; Mr. and Mrs. Faust Clotti and children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Capella, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Whyne, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Capella, Mrs. Raymond Mari, Mrs. Anna Salerno, Peter Nepi, Fred Clotti, Mrs. Alfred Caruso and children, Mrs. Joseph Mari, Mrs. Livia Clotti, the Misses Mary and Helen Sionne, Leona and Mabel Clotti, Mary Mancini, Mary, Anna and Diva Bevin, Louise Troiani, Dorothy Campbell, Florence and Clara Capella, Benedicita Salerno, Mary Luzzi; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Capella and daughters Veronica and Lois Ann.

Miss Clotti will return to her home on Wednesday.

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 15.—(INS)—Lud Wray, former University of Pennsylvania football coach who turned to tutoring professional gridiron stars in 1932, today was suffering from a broken leg received in a Sunday automobile crash in Chestnut Hill.

GUARDING THE SUPREME COURT

Much has been made in discussion of the President's judiciary message of the fact that the Supreme Court has not always been blessed with the odor of sanctity with which its defenders now would surround it.

The President himself invited this phase of the discussion when in the message he referred, somewhat unnecessarily, to the fact that in the early days Supreme Court justices were compelled to ride circuit. Subsequently it has been recalled that Jefferson once suspended the Court's sessions for more than a year; that Jackson defied it; that Lincoln denounced it in terms more unmeasured than the present President ever has used; that Grant was accused of "packing" it, a charge which, however, he vigorously denied.

Most of the Court's present prestige as the oracular interpreter of the Constitution admittedly is a product of the years since the Civil War, in which no great constitutional issues presented themselves to mar the generally even tenor of its way. Admittedly it has not always been immune to political challenge of its high constitutional function. A contention may be supported, in fact, that the Constitution never intended it to have that function.

But, admitting all these things, they still are no argument for the President's plan to reconstitute the Court in accordance with his own views. Rather they are an argument against it.

Admitting that the Court has not always enjoyed its present prestige as interpreter of the Constitution, the fact remains that it now enjoys it. The fact remains that the judicial function in that regard, however inconvenient its exercise may be in the existing premises, is a valuable one; that it is no less valuable because it depends to a degree, like so many other values in human institutions, on intangible factors of tradition and prestige.

Indeed, it may be argued that the President's plan is bad to the very extent that the Court's prestige still is of little antiquity and therefore still is vulnerable to attack. If the stability of our Government needs, as is universally conceded, some agency trusted to interpret the Constitution, the prestige of that agency and function is a treasure to be defended. And surely no attack on it could be more direct and dangerous than a barely disguised proposal to entrust it to men appointed—and expected—to interpret in a certain predetermined way.

It is hard to see how 1937's motor car can be improved much, now that it has a Yale lock on the cardboard glove compartment.

"What is known elsewhere as the Bronx cheer is not the true Bronx salute, which is more of a moo." Well—just so long as they're synonymous.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Sept. 9, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Joshua Peirce will next week commence the erection of a pair of houses of hammer-dressed stone, on Jefferson avenue, West of Pond street. They will be promptly pushed through to completion, and probably be ready for occupancy by the first of May next. It is intended to build such houses as can be sold with the lot for about $6,000 to $6,500.

"Big Ben," a negro of monstrous size and strength, and a former slave, died in the Bucks County Almshouse a few days ago. His abduction, some years before, from his former home in Buckingham, by his old master, made great excitement at the time.

John Catlow, of Philadelphia, has purchased a lot of ground on Dorrance street, next to the railroad, and proposes to erect at once a building for the manufacture of ingrain carpet.

The Warmminster Fire Insurance Company has not lost a dollar by fire for five years.

Hon. R. Audley Browne, the Prohibition candidate for Governor, will speak in front of the town hall, on Monday evening, September 13th, at 7:30 o'clock.

The public schools commenced last Monday. The high school room is refurnished with 50 single desks, which renders the room much more attractive than formerly.

Sarah Anderson, her child and her nephew, were thrown into the canal at Trenton on Saturday by the springing of the horse they were driving, and Mrs. Anderson and the child were drowned.

DOYLESTOWN—The delegates to the Erie convention started for that place on Saturday. They will support the Hon. Henry P. Ross for Governor. The Union camp of different denominations of religious Africans was held on Saturday and Sunday last. About 1000 people were gathered on Sunday afternoon, one-tenth of whom were of African descent. The meetings will be continued during this week.

WARMINSTER—Albert Mattis, of Warwick, is building himself a large dwelling house at his residence on the York pike, below Bridge Valley.

One night last week several dwellings were broken into by burglars at Bridge Valley. Nothing of any value was taken except at the post office, which is kept by Nelson Decourcy. Some letters and loose change were carried away. Nothing has been heard of the thieves as yet.

HULMEVILLE—The public school at this place opened on Monday last with a large attendance. Mr. Jesse H. Knight is the teacher.

Fourteen new members were added to the ranks of the America House Company at its meeting last Friday night.

William White, Jr., of Bath street, dislocated his shoulder last Monday evening. He was getting out of a boat at the wharf, and slipping, he threw his hand up against the wharf to keep from falling in the water.

compared with 534 cases, or 2,070 persons carried on the rolls at the end of the previous week.

A summary tabulation of the changes noted in the caseload during the past two weeks is given in the table below.

Cases Closed Week Ending Mar. 6 Feb. 27

1. Assignment to Works Projects 2 11
2. Employment in private industry 9 7
3. Other reasons (reduced earnings, etc.) 2 6

Total Closings 13 24

Cases Opened

1. Loss of WPA employment 4 4
2. Loss of private employment 13 19
3. Other reasons (CCC, reduced earnings, exhaustion of resources, etc.) 8 2

Total Openings 25 25

A further analysis of the caseload changes shows that during the past few weeks there has been a slight reduction in the total number of applications for relief. This number has dropped from about 60 during the first part of February, to 46 during the past week. It is also interesting to note that "new" applications, from families who have never received relief, constitute approximately one-third of the total number of applications, with the remainder being from former relief cases.

lobby, he said to her: "Go straight upstairs, Denise. They'll have the newspapers at the desk. I'll bring them to you."

She nodded, said, "We did have a nice afternoon, didn't we?" and smiled at him faintly, and went on.

The clerk at the desk had obtained for him a complete assortment of New York papers. He wished, when he saw the first one, that he had ordered no others. . . .

Felicia and Keith had made practically all the front pages. The paper that he picked up first had both their photographs, and Eustace's. Yet in the last twenty-four hours, he had been through so much that he had never once thought of Eustace. The only thought that came to him now was that he was profoundly sorry for Eustace.

He went upstairs, turning a page of a tabloid, to find a picture of Denise and himself staring out. "Sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Eustace Gardiner Dayne," the caption said. The words had absolutely no meaning.

Denise opened the door of their suite as he was fumbling for a key. He said: "You don't want to look at those things, Denise. And you can do whatever you want about me—only please, you must not go home, because it's no use. Just believe me, and don't read the darn things."

Her eyes were great blue ovals in an ashen-white face. Her words were slow, as if she had to fumble for each one of them. "I believe you, but I have to see."

She took the papers out of his hand, sat down, opened one with her hands that were shaking. He wanted to leave the room so that he need not watch the agony in her face. But he was afraid to leave her!

He stood behind her chair, so that her face was hidden from him, and he could only see a curve of her cheek and her down-bent bright head. He read over her shoulder, with a vague thought that if she came to anything too harrowing, he would take the paper away.

That was one of New York's more sensational dailies. Under a wide black headline the story began, chattily.

Handsome Keith Sheldie, Jr., and beautiful Mrs. Eustace Gardiner Dayne lie today near death in Magnolia Farm Hospital, Painstown, Virginia, following a motor accident on the Shore Highway, when the car which Keith Sheldie was driving collided with a truck, only a mile from Twelve Willows Inn, where Mrs. Dayne and Mr. Sheldie had spent three days registered as Mr. and Mrs. Keith Sheldie, Jr.

The innkeeper, Ronald Hunt, on his way to market, made the first indication of their unconscious bodies, as the roadster burned, and with it, all Mr. Sheldie's papers.

The fact of Mrs. Dayne's true identity became known when the innkeeper reached the house of Keith Sheldie, Sr., by telephone and was informed there was no Mrs. Sheldie, Jr.

A broadcast of the initials F. R. D. (Felicia Rendale Dayne), resulted in an immediate telephone response from Mr. Eustace Gardiner Dayne, who was just starting back from a week-end at a friend's house in Maryland.

Mrs. Dayne is suffering from a fractured skull, burns of the arms and face.

Gilbert put his arms over Denise's shoulders. She said: "Oh, Felicia's pretty face! I know that's the least important thing—but it makes it real."

CHAPTER XVII
Denise made a small sound like a moan. But she said: "Felicia and Keith were only in an accident. You read something into the cable that Father didn't mean."

He shrugged his shoulders. "I'll make a bargain with you."

"What?" Her voice was dull now.

"Wait for the newspapers from America. If the accounts describe a large house-party and an accident on the way home from it, you can sail tomorrow. If the accounts make it fairly clear that Felicia and Keith were on a trip together, you stay with me until your year's up."

"All right. But I'm so sure, Gilbert, that if I'm wrong, I'll give you an extra month. We were married November twenty-second. I'll stay until December twenty-second this year, if I'm wrong."

A faint color had come into her cheeks. He thought: "It's dreadful. She looks almost happy now, on the bare chance of going home to him. Yet she must know it's just a chance. Why do I try to keep her?" And he knew why, knew that he had never loved anyone else as much, or would again; knew that he loved her enough to try to save her from a futile gesture if he was right, and even to let her go if he was wrong, and that that faith of hers was justified.

He said: "Don't tell me if you don't want. How does it happen you believe in him so completely?"

"Because once I told him I didn't trust him, and have always regretted it."

Well, he had his answer.

"Go to bed now, Denise. The papers won't be up from Southampton until late in the afternoon, probably. I suppose you won't run away in the night?"

She stood up, hesitated at the door. "I shan't run away, I promise. There's something I should tell you, Gilbert. That time, just before our marriage, when I saw Keith, was only once for an hour or so. It didn't seem dishonorable."

The wildest jealousy was sweeping him. By a violent physical effort he forced it back, made himself say: "It's all right."

"Good night, Gilbert, and thank you."

As he said good night and went to his room, he wondered if she would thank him when the American papers came. Then he did something he had not done in all the months of the marriage. He went to her bedroom. The door was unlocked. She had not bothered to lock doors since it was settled without many words between them that their marriage was to be only formal. He thought bitterly that at least she did trust him not to force himself upon her.

She was asleep, with the morning light streaming across her. She must have fallen into an exhausted sleep immediately on going to bed. One hand, with her wedding ring on her finger, was flung out across the pillow. What a child she looked, lying there!

Longing, loneliness swept through him, watching her. Was it all no use, would she leave him finally, and go back to Keith Sheldie in the end, no matter what he did? Or would she some day, if he were patient still, love him? He could not tell. He knew only that he had hurt her, and he had never meant to hurt her.

He took an extra coverlet from her bed, drew the shades so the brightening light should not wake her, and laid down himself on the couch under her windows. As if—as if by being in the same room, he could be closer to her, close enough to save her from any hurt again.

He had meant to leave before she woke; but they woke in the same moment. She regarded him sleepily, and he said, before she could speak: "I was afraid you might wake and feel ill. You were so nervous before you went to bed. You don't mind, do you?"

When they were walking into the

He could not tell her that he had been so lonely for her. He would appeal to her pride, if he must, to keep her, even to reminding her of her father's debt, though time was, when he would not have thought of doing that. But he would never ask for her pity!

"I don't mind. What do you want to do today, Gilbert, before the papers come in?"

As if now that she was so soon to be done with him, there was nothing she would not do for him!

He thought that, but he only said: "Let's have breakfast sent up, and then go walking. They say the bluebells in Kew Gardens are wonderful, and I've never seen them." From very long ago the voice of his father came to him, telling him of English bluebells in Kew Gardens in the spring. He'd never told Denise about his tutor, or much about his childhood or himself. She wouldn't have been interested.

He came back from his own room dressed, to tell her that he had telephoned, that the American newspapers would not be up from Southampton until late afternoon, and watched her try to pretend not to be disappointed.

She tried very hard all that bright afternoon to be gay, to be interested in whatever he said. Under the formal trees, along the neat paths where even the riotous spring bloom seemed made decorous to suit English taste, she walked with her arm in his. And a dowager walking stiffly on the arm of her companion said, loud enough for them to hear: "American honeymooners. Really!"

He watched the quick pink color rise in Denise's cheeks, but he held her arm inside his.

Denise said: "Does it make it up to you at all, Gilbert, that I like you, that I wish I'd treated you better?"

"You don't have to 'make up' anything to me, if you're right, and you sail tomorrow."

She turned her pretty head, and regarded for an instant the black substantial back of the dowager moving away from them at a stately pace. "When I'm old like that, I wonder whether I'll remember spring days like this, that are so beautiful they are exciting, the scents and the colors and the sounds of bird-songs."

He thought: "She's twenty-two. That woman looked past seventy. Fifty years from now, will Denise remember anything about me, more than my name, or that she was married to me for a little while? If she sails tomorrow, will she remember no more than that?" For the strangest doubt had risen in him all that day, watching her confident face, that perhaps she was right, and he, being right, he would lose her forever. But almost—almost, with her arm on his, his smile so serene, her voice friendly, he could wish—that she should have her wish!

They walked back along that path, where the blue-bells were thick under the great trees that had seen Elizabeth ride by perhaps, and the Stuarts, and the whole of modern English history. So they passed the dowager again.

He caught a glimpse of her face, composed, empty, the face of an elderly Englishwoman of a good class. In the 'eighties, in tight-waisted frocks and absurd belted hats, she must have walked under those trees, a young girl like Denise. What did she remember from that time? Nothing that showed, that warmed her face, remembering.

He said to Denise: "If you should sail tomorrow, dear, do not quite forget me. Remember perhaps today, the bluebells and the clear sky and the lawns."

"I'll always remember, Gilbert."

In the cab on the way back to Grosvenor House she was too nervous to talk, and he made no more effort with her.

the next quarterly meeting on Saturday, June 12th, was fixed at Newtown.

Nomination of officers to be elected at the June meeting was as follows: President, James E. Groome, Yardley; first vice-president, Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; second vice-president, Lloyd Crouthamel, Dublin; third vice-president, Raymond Stauffer, Quakertown; recording secretary, H. C. Reiss, of Silverdale; financial secretary, W. C. Stauffer of Sellersville; treasurer, Lewis B. Leedom, Yardley; trustee for 3 years, William Hamilton, New Hope; fire marshal, William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville; chaplain, Rev. Arthur S. Gibson, Eddington.

H. L. Hughes, of Cornwells, was appointed a delegate to the next state convention to be held in Philadelphia. The Honorable T. B. Stockham in a closing speech commended the president and fire marshal on interest created and the program carried out for fire prevention and the protection of property. He said that "what a fireman stands for is a truth of citizenship."

Mr. Groome urged that a new spirit of enthusiasm be instilled in the young men of the county on the program of fire fighting, and he commended the magnificent work of the women's auxiliaries.

Music was furnished by Miss Ida Blaker at the piano and Fred Hallmark, violin. Solos were rendered by Johnson Miller, on the saw. His selections were, "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen" and "Roll Along Frairies Moon." He was accompanied by Miss Blaker.

The auxiliary of the county organ-

WALLACE OF MORRISVILLE LED IN COUNTY TOURNEY

Bucky Wallace carried off the individual scoring honors of the Bucks County Tournament sponsored by Bristol here last week. The rangy Morrisville all-around star planted 11 field goals and five free shots for a total of 27 tallies in four games. He balanced his scoring by counting eight points in each of the first three games, but could only chalk up three against Bristol in the championship tilt. However, Bucky had the advantage of participating in four games, more than any other team, and he played most of every game and all of some. This four-game advantage placed three other members of the Bulldogs in the first ten scorers.

Punk Zeferi, ace forward of the local five, clicked off 20 points in two games, and a small portion of a third tilt. Punk placed second in the tournament scoring, mainly through his high scoring against Sellersville when he marked up 12 points. His seven in the Morrisville game and one against Bensalem, in which he played two minutes, completed his total. Zef was the only Bristol star to place in the first ten, although Phil Carnvale missed placing by a single tally. He scored 10 against Sellersville, none in his two minutes against Bensalem, and he missed the Morrisville game entirely.

Others among the leading ten scorers from Morrisville included their big center, Red Reitzle, who hung up seven floor shots and a quintet of fouls for a total of 19 points, which placed him third. Bill Wilson came in fifth with 14 markers, and John Byer with 13 placed sixth in a three-way tie. As stated before, all of these stars had an advantage over other players by participating in more games than any other team.

Little Newtown surprised most critics by placing three in the ten scorers. Howie Tomlinson led the squad with 15 points in two games which enabled him to capture fourth spot. He also sank all three of his foul tries. The other two Blue and White basketballers who ranked ninth and tenth in a tie with 11 points, were Nolan and Smith.

Henry "Clay" Stover, of Sellersville-Perkasie, and Bill Gerhad, of Quakertown, tied with Byer, of Morrisville, for sixth place with 13 counters each. The former two, however, should get the nod over the latter as they scored all their tallies in one game whereas Byer took four to count his. Nevertheless, Byer deserves much credit, none of which should, and we hope it won't, be taken away from him.

These ten sharp shooters counted 60 double-deckers and 36 charity throws for a total of 156 markers during the tournament. Wallace scored slightly more than one-sixth of the field goals when he marked off eleven. Punk Zeferi sank the most free tosses, but he also had the most shots, 14, of which he made six. "Smokey" Stover of Sellersville had the highest scoring average, together with Tomlinson of Newtown, in regard to foul shooting, both of whom stuck all of their free tosses. Stover sank five out of five, and Tomlinson three out of three, for a thousand per cent.

In regard to team scoring, Morrisville led the field again with 37 twin-pointers and 25 for a total of 99 points. Bristol was a close second with 28 double-deckers and 21 free tosses for 77 tallies. Newtown, Bensalem and Quakertown followed in that order with 48, 42, and 39 points, respectively.

The Bulldogs had the high single game score with 33 tallies against Quakertown's second team. Their victory over the Bux-Mont's seconds was the easiest victory by 20 points, 33-13. The closest score was between Morrisville and Doylestown, and Bristol and Sellersville, each being decided by two markers. The scores were 23-21, and 31-29, respectively.

Sellersville compiled the best foul shooting average when they sank nine out of 12 for a .750. Doylestown's five out of eight placed them second in this department; Newtown sank 10 out of 19 for .526, and Morrisville counted 25 out of 50 for an even .500. These were the only teams to shoot better than .500 in foul shooting during the tournament. Bristol scored 21 out of 45 for a percentage of .467.

The most points scored in a single period was 14, scored by Bristol in the third period in the game with Bensalem. Morrisville's 13 in the last period against Newtown, to sew up that tilt, was next high single period. Speaking of scoring, one thinks also of individual tallying, and in this tournament, the three highest single scorers were Gerhad of Quakertown, and Stover of Sellersville-Perkasie, each with 13 against Fallsington and Bristol, respectively, to lead the point gatherers in this department. Punk Zeferi was third due to his 12 points chalked up against Sellersville.

The ten leading scorers were:

Governor Wars On Slot Machines

Harrisburg, Mar. 15—Governor George H. Earle moved today to put the brakes on the whirling wheels of slot machines in Pennsylvania, which "violates the fundamental law of decency and sportsmanship."

Ordering District Attorneys in the Commonwealth to "drive the slot machine business out of your county within thirty days and keep it out," the Governor said he was informed that the machines were mechanically controlled so that the player at best, has a 1 to 15 chance of winning. "Only the operator profits," he said.

To Create New Fleet

Manchester, Eng., Mar. 15—Opening a "new chapter in British Imperial relations," England planned to create a new Pacific fleet composed of a minimum of 90 warships, the Manchester Guardian said today.

Five battleships and ten cruisers will be included, it was predicted. At present there are only 35 British warships in the Pacific zone and no battleships.

Laughs at Being Ill

Vienna, Mar. 15—From her sick bed in Bucharest, Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania today laughed at the world's fears that she is dangerously ill.

Archduke Anton, husband of Princess Ileana, who is Queen Marie's daughter, revealed to I. N. S. that Ileana had telephoned direct to her mother and learned that she is suffering from minor stomach disorders as a result of influenza.

"My wife has just telephoned to Her Majesty, the Dowager Queen," said Archduke Anton.

"Queen Marie laughed off anxious stories that she had been 'poisoned' and was a victim of 'partial paralysis.' She said she would be up again in a few days and felt so well she persuaded my wife not to go to Bucharest as she had intended. In view of this the Archduchess Ileana will stay at Sonnenberg Castle."

ists; and Quakertown high school, which captured the team title from 32 competing schools. Moyer Hunsberger, 14-year-old freshman from Quakertown, who last year finished in the individual runner-up position, is again entered in the event. Other members of the winning Quakertown team were: Clota Croll, June Landis, Howard Lewis and Marguerite Eeten. Barnegat, N. J., high school, with an all-girl team, composed of Jane Penrod, Edna Cranmer, Madge Kelley, Elizabeth Broome and Doris Grant won the team runner-up award last year and are again to compete in the contest.

The procedure of the contest, as announced by Mr. Laman will be the same as in previous years. Individual and team champions will be given awards. To decide the finalists in both classes, a written qualifying test will be held from which the ten highest scoring teams and forty highest scoring individuals will be chosen.

The ten teams, composed of five members each, which qualify, will then engage in an oral contest to decide the winner and runner-up team titles. The forty highest scoring individuals will compete in an oral test to determine the individual champion and runner-up.

Trophies will be awarded to the teams finishing first and second in the team competition, while the individual members of these teams will receive silver and bronze medals respectively. Each school competing in the contest is awarded an ornamental plaque, to be competed for by students of that particular school, under its own rules and regulations.

The event is one of the most popular of its kind held in this section. Last year's entries came from 32 schools and included 160 individuals. Elimination contests have already been held by many of the competing schools to determine their representatives in the Peirce School event. The school's five best spellers, accompanied by two alternates, are the guests of the sponsor during the affair on March 20th.

The Peirce School Contest had its inception in 1925, for the purpose of creating interest in correct spelling. The contestants and officials will be the guests of the Peirce School at a luncheon on March 20th.

High schools entered to date are: Bristol, Springfield Township, Langhorne-Middletown, Doylestown, North-east Catholic, Hatfield, Nether Providence, Collegeville, Sharon Hill, Robeson, Ridley Park, Quakertown, Falls Township, Glen Nor., Phoenixville, Bensalem Township, Newtown, Buckingham, Hatboro, and North Wales. From New Jersey: Barnegat, Tuckerton, and Toms River.
